THE COURTS.

MEMENTO OF WILLIAM C. BARRETT, THE FUGI-TIVE LAWYER.

The defalcation and flight of William C. Barrett, the lawyer, has been revived in the public memory by the beginning of the trial yesterday, before Judge Van Vorst, in Supreme Court, Circuit, brought by the Corn Exchange Bank against the Nassau Bank. The amount in controversy is about $24,000 Messrs. Kunhardt & gave to Mr. Barrett a check for some $19,000, amount sued for being this sum and interest, be used in the settlement of a suit. Into be used in the settlement of a suit. Instead, however, of using the check as directed Mr. Barrett forged the names of the payees and deposited the check for collection in the Nassau Bank, in which he kept an account. The Corn Exchange Bank cashed, through the Clearing House, the check, and Mr. Barrett was paid the money. Some time since Knuhardt & Co. recovered in a suit against the Corn Exchange Bank the amount of the check on the ground that it should not be charged against them, inasmuch as the payees names were forgeries. In the present suit the Corn Exchange Bank seeks to recover the amount of the check, which was paid back by them to Kunhardt & Co., on the ground that the Nassau Bank collected from them the amount of the check through the forgery of their own depositor, they being supposed to guarantee as the collecting bank the authenticity of prior indorsements, and having received the money from the Corn Exchange Bank on the strength of such guarantee. Messrs. James W. Gerard and John Bowers appeared for the plaintiffs and Messrs. Joseph H. Choate and William Divine for the defendants.

MOTHER AND SONS. Major Noah, of the Corporation Attorney's office, commenced proceedings last June, at the instance of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction, in the Court of General Sessions, before Judge Gilde sleave, to compel three brothers, Leopold, Aifred and Felix Salomon, paper box manufacturers, to support their mother. The sons claimed that their mother had saved a sum of money from what they had contributed toward house-keeping. After a lengthy examination Judge Gildersleeve made an order directing the brothers to pay $1.50 each a week for the maintenance of their mother. Leopoid declined to pay his slare and he was arrested on an attachment for contempt. After four days' incarecration in the Tombs he complied with the order of the Court and was re-leased. In the Court of General Sessions, counsel for Leopoid moved that the attachment be vacated on the ground that he was too poor to comply further with the order of the Court. Major Nosh then intimated that if the attachment were vacated he should ask that the weekly payments of the other brothers be proportionately increased. Decision was reserved.
